

NO NECESSITY FOR DISSENTION

CITY SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER
POINTS OUT THAT BENEFITS
FROM NEW HIGH SCHOOL WOULD NECESSARILY BE MUTUAL.

MR. LANDES IS OBURGANT

That, even though under the present law each one of the trustees of the two corporations represented could have a vote, if the city of Greencastle and Greencastle township cooperate to build a high school there would never be any difference of opinion arise between the men growing out of the fact that they represent different interests seems to be the opinion of everybody concerned in the movement with the exception of George Landes, township trustee.

To the minds of many a difference of opinion would be impossible. It is pointed out that the school board of Greencastle could not maintain a policy that would hurt the township without hurting the city, and that it could not boost the city without boosting the township. And what is true of the school board would be equally true of the township trustee. It is alleged that the interests are mutual, and that a man, representing either corporation, not big enough to put aside all personal matters for the benefit of everybody concerned has no business, and would probably not long remain, on the school board.

"We believe there is no reason for thinking that there would ever be a difference of opinion between the city and the township," H. C. Allen, president of the school board declared this morning. "Such a thing would be impossible. Our interests are entirely mutual, and one of us could not hurt the other without doing an equal amount of harm to ourselves. The whole history of the school board will show that its members have always acted for the interests of the city, and that matters of political policy or personal prejudice have never entered in. What grounds are there for thinking all this would be changed by the addition of another member of the board?"

That the city needs a new high school building no one, not even Landes, denies. As was pointed out by a man who is much interested in Greencastle schools, the present building is totally unfit for a high school building. Built originally for a ward school no provision was made for the work usually carried on in the high school. Yet in spite of this fact there are now more than one hundred more students enrolled than there were half a dozen years ago, and two more teachers than there are class rooms.

In addition to this the new state law makes vocation education necessary. With the present building it will be impossible to live up to the letter of the law. The only solution is a new building, providing an auditorium, laboratories, facilities for vocational training, and study rooms that are large and sanitary.

"The people in Greencastle township would profit as much from such a building as would the people of Greencastle," Mr. Allen pointed out. "If children of the people outside of Greencastle are to have a high school education the best place open to them is the city school. But if they have been attending a poorly equipped school they will to that extent be poorly trained."

"If vocational education is a good thing for the boys and girls of Greencastle," continued Mr. Allen, "it is an equally good thing for the boys and girls of Greencastle township. That it gets results is shown by the success of the students coming out of such schools. The only way the city and the township can provide such training for the school children of the two districts is to go together and build a modern, up-to-date, well equipped school."

MISS MAHAN GOES TO COLORADO COLLEGE

Friends of Miss Helen Mahan, instructor in English Composition in DePauw University, have received word that she has been given charge of the work in rhetoric and composition in Colorado College, Colorado Springs, Colo., for this coming year. Miss Mahan takes Prof. Homer E. Woodbridge's place, who is away on a year's leave of absence.

At the end of this academic year Miss Mahan was given a year's leave of absence to study in the University of Michigan. A few weeks ago the president of the Colorado institution learned that she was leaving DePauw, and offered her the work in Colorado College.

Miss Mahan is rated a very competent instructor by the university authorities. In addition to being very proficient in teaching freshman English she has made a special study of aesthetic writing both here and at the University of Chicago, paying particular attention to the short story. She has had charge of the short story class in DePauw, and has also had a class in personal essay writing.

In her new position Miss Mahan will have complete charge of the department of English Composition, and will have both freshman work and classes in advanced writing.

LOCAL LODGE ASKED TO ATTEND ROACHDALE EVENT.

An invitation inviting them to attend the laying of the corner stone of Roachdale's new Carnegie city library has been received by Temple Lodge Number 47, Free and Accepted Order of Masons. The corner stone will be laid on the afternoon of July 30, and will be in charge of the Masons.

The invitation was received by James L. Randel this morning. He said that while he did not know as yet it was probable that a good sized crowd from here would take part in the ceremonies.

The invitation addressed to Temple Lodge No. 47, F. & A. M., Greencastle, is as follows:

"Dear Brothers: The members of your lodge are cordially invited to assist the 'Most Worshipful Grand Master' in laying the corner stone of the new library building at 1 p. m., July 30, 1913.

"Hoping you will be able to attend we beg to remain, Yours fraternally. The letter was signed by L. S. Warren, C. N. Stroube and G. A. Wilson.

HORSE SHOW DATE IS AGAIN CHANGED

LENGTHY DEBATES SWITCH DAY FOR HOME-COMING OVER MANY DATES, AGREEMENT BEING
FINALLY REACHED ON AUGUST
26.

FULL LIST OF THE PRIZES

After debating for two hours, changing the date from August 21 back to the original date, August 28, and then debating a while longer, the citizens attending the horse show and home-coming meeting in the court house Monday night finally agreed that Tuesday, August 26, would be the best day for the attraction. The final date was officially made by the executive committee. So August 26 is the latest date set for the affair and probably the date on which it will be held. It was the consensus of opinion that this date should be definite and that under no consideration should it be changed.

The lengthy debate was started when objections were made against the date of August 21. The fact that the teachers' institute will be in session and that three large family reunions will occur were used in arguing against it. A vote was then taken, and August 28, the original date, chosen. Immediately a storm of protests came forth. The motion was reconsidered and the matter was again open.

Ernest Stoner, representing the postoffice employees, then made a motion asking that the event be held on Labor Day, September 1, which will be the last day of the state meeting of rural route carriers here. To this date even more objections were made. The September term of the circuit court convenes and county commissioners are in session that day. Besides the merchants object to attractions being held on Monday. A further objection was that it would be hard to procure a band and concessions. Mr. Stoner withdrew his motion.

Being unable to agree, a vote was taken to leave the matter in the hands of the executive committee, which consists of the officers. This was done and about 10 o'clock the committee decided on Tuesday, August 26.

Mr. Crall, representing the interurban, was at the meeting and stated he would assist the city as much as possible, in that he will furnish extra car service on the traction line. The finance committee did not make a report further than more money is needed to care for the details of the attraction.

After this the following premium list was accepted and will be the official list of prizes:

APPEAL CONCERT CASES.

Mayor Fines Three Chautauqua Men
Guilty of Ordinance Violation.

That lengthy and involved legal steps may follow the action of the city officials in placing under arrest Supt. J. H. Sowerby of the Redpath Chautauqua Bureau, Bohumir Kryl, leader of the band that gave concerts here Sunday, and Earl Crane, who sold tickets at the gate, seems probable at this time. In police court to day a written plea was filed by Crane and McCabe, attorneys retained by the Chautauqua men. In this plea the attorneys urged the statement that a city ordinance had not been violated here Sunday with the presentation of the concerts. They brought out the fact that there is no statement in the ordinance relative to sacred concerts, but that "entertainment, moving picture shows and other shows" are prohibited on Sunday.

In passing on the plea of the attorneys Mayor Wert said Monday afternoon that the city's law makers had intended to include Sunday Chautauqua performers in the ordinance even if this was not clearly stated and found the men guilty. He announced that the fine of each of the three would be $10 and costs.

Attorney McCabe at once stated that arrangements would be made for the case to be appealed to the circuit court. He is confident he says, that a city ordinance was not violated here Sunday and believes the case will be decided in favor of the Chautauqua managers in circuit court. The appeal bond of each of the three men was fixed at $50.

In police court this afternoon Mr. McCabe spent a half hour endeavoring to convince the mayor that the word "show" did not apply to a concert such as that given Sunday. During the discussion of the case the city was represented by City Attorney Chase Harding.—Crawfordsville Journal.

WEDDING INVITATIONS SENT TO FRIENDS OF KARL FUSSLER

Invitations to the wedding of Karl H. Fussler, instructor in Physics in DePauw university during the years 1910-11, and Miss Irene Howe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Howe, have been received. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride's parents at 9:30 o'clock on the morning of August 5. The Rev. W. N. Gaither, D. D. of Greencastle, will perform the ceremony. Mr. Fussler is a graduate of Indiana university as is also Miss Howe. Their marriage is the culmination of a college romance.

The body of Miss Louise M. Rankin, whose death occurred in Indianapolis, was brought here this morning and taken to the Forest Hill cemetery for burial. Several Indianapolis people accompanied the body.

OLD LANDMARKS PASSING AWAY

IMPROVEMENTS AT DEPAUW UNIVERSITY WILL SOON OBLITERATE SCENES FAMILIAR TO THE OLD GRADUATES.

OLD TOWER DOWN TODAY

When the improvements begun on West College have been finished the old landmarks that serve to recall to the old grads the days when DePauw was a real university, with its law, medical and theological school, with its cadet corps in charge of a commissioned officer from the United States regular army, and its weather observation tower, erected by the late John B. DeMotte will have vanished.

Most of them have already been destroyed. The old cannon long ago disappeared. None of the present generation of college men can remember the ancient muskets and bayonets, once borne so gallantly by embryo doctors, lawyers and ministers. Only a few dust covered, musty leaves, books stowed away in some forgotten part of the new college library are left to recall the once famous departments of what it was hoped would develop into the greatest university in the Ohio valley. And today the old observation tower, worm eaten, neglected and unsafe, was torn away.

When Dr. DeMotte was head of the department of Physics he was given to making unusual apparatus, and startling experiments. It was Dr. DeMotte that built a weather

HON. JAMES K. CODDING.

JUST at present the study of immorality and crime, with their attendant causes and possible prevention and cure, is attracting unusual attention. No man in America is better prepared to speak on these related subjects than Hon. James K. Coddling, warden of the state penitentiary at Lansing, Kan., who has 2,000 prisoners under his charge and through whose efficient management the daily prison life has been revolutionized and many a man taught the lesson of decency and self respect. Among his reforms has been the giving of three square meals a day to the prisoners and the conducting of a daily baseball game in season within the prison walls. Mr. Coddling is well known to students of sociology through his articles on "Crime and Its Cure" in World's Work, American Magazine, Saturday Evening Post and the Survey. We are unusually fortunate in securing him for the opening day of our Chautauqua.

Can anything be more attractive than this dainty little frock made of fine batiste, with square neck and sleeve bands of Irish lace? With this dress is worn one of those fascinating black silk sashes; a sash of soft silk with fringe attached by hand may be easily made at home. Then this little model would be charming worked out in linen, with the skirt laid in clusters of tucks and the square neck and sleeve bands fashioned out of some pretty hand work. One of the new shaped leather belts, with large flat bow at the back, would add just the right touch.

Vanity Bags.
Vanity Bags for dancing parties are attractive if made of Dresden ribbon in colors corresponding with the gown. A small circular mirror glued to the base of the bag, which is made of cardboard, is held in place by a narrow edge of shirred ribbon. The reverse side of the cardboard is ribbon-covered and scented with some dainty sachet. The bag holds the powder and puff ball, the handkerchiefs, a few pins and, if milady uses rouge, a tiny box of carmine. Narrow ribbon loops attach it to the arm.

Down Pillows.
Those who have been troubled by the sifting through of down in pillows will be glad to learn of the following: Iron the muslin interlining on the wrong side with a hot iron which has been well rubbed in beeswax. The wax will act like varnish on the smooth surface, and thus prevent the down from sifting through.

Dyed Laces Popular.
Dyed laces have come back, chiefly for the purpose of combining with the colored crasses and linen hop sackings which are much more popular than the cotton marquisettes, though utilized in practically the same way.

Rig for Garden Party—Transparency Over Skin-Pink Taffeta Gives Charming Effect—Long Points of Fine Embroidery Extend from the Feet Upward.

I have just seen the loveliest garden party dress. It is in skin-pink taffeta, veiled with white linen, giving a most delicate shade. The sloping tunic is inserted with the crowns of Brittany caps in the finest of embroidery. Tiny pink silk roses surround the waist in three rows, and appear down the front of the tunic. A garland of the same flowers and foliage outline the collar in pink taffeta.

Three large pink taffeta rosettes trim the sleeves and complete the waistband of roses at the front. Long points of fine embroidery are incrustured from the feet upward upon the skirt.

MOTOR RACE WITH COYOTE

Animal Kept Lead for a Mile but Dropped Exhausted and Was Captured.

Los Angeles, Cal.—In a thrilling race between a four cylinder automobile speeding at thirty miles an hour and a young coyote in the Santa Inez valley, the animal lost to the driver of the big machine and became a captive at the home of B. F. Coons. It was brought to this city in a cage and an effort made to domesticate it. The animal failed to escape only through sheer exhaustion after it had maintained a lead for nearly a mile.

Mr. Coons was inspecting a ten thousand acre tract in Santa Barbara county when the contest in speed occurred. His son was in the driver's seat.

"For almost a mile we turned the machine loose for all its speed, but the coyote kept in advance, and for a time appeared to be gaining," said Mr. Coons. "Once it stopped suddenly, as if to let us pass and escape before we could turn, but we slowed down in time. Instantly it took a new start and went like the wind ahead of us."

"We saw that the exertion was proving too much for the animal, and it slowed down and fell panting on the edge of the road. It recovered in a short time, however, and attempted to fight, but we muzzled it with a piece of rubber tire. We will try to tame it, and if we are not successful it will be given to one of the parks."

OLDEST WOMAN IN THE WORLD.

Bulgarian Peasant Said to Have Been Born in 1784.

Berlin.—The claim of Frau Dutkiewitz, of Posen, born on February 21, 1785, to be the oldest woman in the world is now contested by Mrs. Baba Vasilka, who was born in May, 1784, in the little Bulgarian village of Bavelko, where she has lived ever since. The record of her birth is preserved in a neighboring monastery of the Orthodox Greek faith. Baba Vasilka is the daughter of a peasant, and worked as a peasant up to a comparatively recent date. For more than a hundred years she regularly worked in the fields, according to the custom of her country, where women are employed in all sorts of manual labor. When she was born Bulgaria was merely a province of the Turkish Empire, and the entire population groaned under the tyranny of their Turkish rulers. She lives on a pension paid to her by many of her numerous descendants, who number more than one hundred.

DOOMED TURTLE'S REVENGE.

Snap Off a Gas Pipe and Asphyxiates Farmer Jacob's Chickens.

South Norwalk, Conn.—A snapping turtle weighing forty pounds cost the lives of one hundred chickens and three pigs in Herman Jacob's barn at Roton Point. Incidentally two of Jacob's farmhands were made ill by inhaling illuminating gas.

After a hard fight Jacobs captured the turtle in a swamp recently. He chained it to a stake in his backyard and started to fatten it, intending to invite his friends to a turtle supper.

The turtle got loose and crawled into the model barn, which contains a gas plant. Without the slightest apparent inconvenience to itself, the turtle snapped off a gas pipe. The gas, escaping in large quantities, soon filled the barn. In the barn were a henery and a pigsty; the unfortunate chickens and pigs were asphyxiated quickly; the farm hands, looking for the leak, inhaled much gas.

The turtle also inhaled so much gas that it swelled and appeared in prime condition. But Jacobs knows this appearance is deceptive. He decided to continue to fatten the turtle and serve it to his friends if only for vengeance sake.

GIANT SWORDFISH CAUGHT.

Dressed 550 Pounds and Brought Record Price of $126.50.

Boston.—A swordfish weighing 550 pounds when dressed was brought into T. Wharf by Captain Emanuel Sears, of the fishing schooner Olivia Sears. The fish was sold for $126.50, the highest price ever paid for a fish of this description. The sword cut from the fish weighed twenty-five pounds.

The fish was harpooned by Seaman Perry from the schooner's pulpit, and three dories, manned by nine men, went after him. It carried the 300 feet of line and the half-kay buoy half a mile from the schooner and more than two hours' time was consumed to get him. Captain Sears said the fish put up a game fight for his liberty, but that the odds were against him.

An autopsy was performed and a partially formed turtle, almost as large as a hen's egg, was found in his stomach.

TRUNK PACKING STUDY.

One Who travels with an Actress Knows all the New Wrinkles.

Only one man in twenty and one woman in a hundred know how to pack a trunk neatly and compactly.

One would learn a good deal in watching a packer who travels with an actress. She knows all the best and newest wrinkles in the art and can get three times the amount of clothing into a given space that the ordinary woman does.

At the bottom of the trunk she places the dainty, delicate lingerie, folded as smoothly as in the power of human hands, and held by two narrow bands of elastic. Stockings are not tied up in a knot and stuffed into the corners, but are folded once and tied with tapes.

Boxes are eschewed entirely, and for them are substituted pairs of cards in all sizes, with tapes for tying. Mountains of manilla tissue paper and huge piles of newspapers are used.

A layer of clothes is laid smoothly in the trunk. Next comes a sheet of clean linen and over this a newspaper. This is an important item. Newspaper is crisp and stiff enough to resist hard jolting. The sleeves of every gown are bunched out with tissue paper, as are all satin slippers.

All handsome gowns have their own linen slips.

On top of the packed trunk is spread a tray of newspapers. Into the heart of the trunk just above the lingerie go all breakables after they have been securely corked—from blacking bottles to cold-cream jars. The soft stuff takes the jar of the jolts away, and liquids are, in consequence, perfectly secure.

A well-packed trunk is a joy not very well known to the average traveler, who arrives at her destination oftentimes with her most-cherished gowns in a bad condition, and sick at heart in consequence. The art is not hard to learn and is surely worth the effort.

Talked to the Wrong Man.

Recently Jean Webster, a niece of Mark Twain, who has written several books, including "When Patty Came to College," gave a tea to which she invited many of her friends. One of the party, a young woman, was introduced to a man whose name she did not hear in the introduction. The young woman talked of the hostess and praised her for her ability as a writer. The man agreed Miss Webster was clever, and he heard the young woman remark there was usually only one in the family so bright. She even said that if Miss Webster had a brother perhaps he would be very stupid. "I don't think that," said the man, reddening. He talked about Miss Webster and told of her life as a child and how she had started on a book immediately after she left college. "You seem to know Miss Webster well," remarked the woman. "I ought to," retorted the man. "I'm her brother."

Lady Harmsworth Loves Outdoors.

Lady Harmsworth, wife of Sir Harold Harmsworth, is an exponent of outdoor life among women. She is not what might be called strenuous, nor is she a crusader, but she is an independent, progressive woman who follows her own convictions. She is clever at tennis, golf, riding, driving, and even cricket. She is a constant companion of her children, and finds her enthusiasm for outdoor exercise enables her to keep more in the company of her sons and closer to them in their amusements. She has three sons, and with them and her husband she spends the greater part of her time in North End place, Hampstead. She devotes herself to her family, and, though living a quiet social life, is happy and contented. Her example is being regarded more and more by society women as thoroughly wise.

Chance for Variety.

Vying with the ficu is the plastron, which affords more opportunity for variety. It is generally continued under the belt, sometimes forming an entire panel. At other times the extension is arranged to give a jacket effect of a short stole. The berth, too, has reappeared. It is a desirable method of making use of old lace scarfs.

Three terriers recently killed 250 rats in half an hour when a wheat-stack was being threshed at Bishop's stortford.

England has 12,000,000 cattle, which is a small number when compared with other countries.

The English post offices make $50,000 a year on postal orders that are not redeemed.

The trimming is gradually creeping around to the sides and front of the hats.

Side Jabots New Neckwear Novelty

The only novelty in the neckwear line is the side jabot, and this is being shown in every conceivable form, both attached to the lingerie waist and separate, as a piece of neckwear. The exclusive shops are showing tremendously big assortments, and all of the novelties are in active movement.

The exclusive shops are using real lace almost altogether for these big pieces of neckwear. Valenciennes, point de Milan, and Mechlin laces are greatly used for this purpose. Machine laces are also very popular and are especially attractive in champagne and cream tones.

The usual way of wearing the wide plaited jabot frill is to fasten it inside of the right rever of the jacket, and then, by pinning the opposite edge of the frill to the left shoulder, the whole front of the corsage is covered with the plaited frill. This necessitates the use of wide lace of fine quality and makes the jabot somewhat expensive. Prominent among the jabots is one somewhat in ficu form, developed in handkerchief linen, with deep edgings of real Valenciennes lace. Instead of the usual straight band descending down the center to hold the jabot frills there is a plaited shaped section, which curves slightly to the right, and the frills bordering this descend in the ficu form passing from the left shoulder to the right side in a gentle curving line.

Another interesting neckpiece forms the entire front of the bodice, the whole being in butterfly effect and falling in cascade plaits. The center of this is a piece of tucked net shaped into the butterfly by wide, fine Mechlin lace. When worn without the jacket the lace falls on opposite sides, but with the jacket the side at the right is pinned over toward the left, thus forming the double one side frills.

A third piece has the straight band collar and three plaited tabs of unequal length falling straight in the front. Another pretty novelty is developed in fine point d'esprit with narrow edgings of Valenciennes lace. This is the edge of Valenciennes lace. This is the single rever or plaited frill, and has the standing collar band.

Another interesting jabot finishes with the black velvet neckband with small necktie bow directly in front. The center strip which holds the plaited frill is trimmed in the style of a shirt front, with hand cuttings and tiny frills of lace, while down the center are little buttons of black velvet.

Novel Way to Serve.

A novel way to serve salad is in the form of small wagons. The necessary ingredients for each wagon are four round crackers, each the size of a silver dollar, four wooden toothpicks, and a double, long, narrow reception wafer. Lap the flat ends of two toothpicks and sew together. Run a needle through the centers of round crackers, and insert pointed ends of toothpicks in perforations thus made. Scatter shredded lettuce leaf over plate upon which place four wheels prepared as above. Upon the axles made of toothpicks place the double reception wafer, upon which the lettuce leaves are placed for the salad. Any kind of salad can be served. The fork should be placed under wagon, the handle of which serves for the tongue of wagon.

To Prevent Cold Sores.

To prevent a trouble one must first understand the cause. This eruption is often associated with colds, fevers, malaria, diseases of the lungs, and disturbances of digestion. Sometimes prolonged exposure to the sun, when on the water, calls forth the trouble. Now and then a decayed tooth seems to be the cause. It is possibly, but not probably, due to a microbe. The eruption is distinctly neurotic. The condition to which it is due is not always discoverable. The application of sweet spirits of niter to the spot at its first appearance will often prevent its further development.

Renewing Porch Awning.

How to renew old porch awnings or small tents for 20 cents—I took my old, faded, and soiled awning and dyed it a dark green. You can get any shade at the drug store for 10 cents a package. Your awnings or tents will look like new. I used a large sized galvanized wash tub to dye it in. Follow directions on package. Dark green is the most soothing color for the eyes. I used two packages, which cost 20 cents. This dye will not stain the tub.

Canned Tomatoes.

Take a pan of ripe tomatoes and cover with scalding hot water; dip them out, remove the skins, leaving the fruit whole. Lay in a dripping pan (just one layer) and put in a hot oven. Heat them through and remove, putting into warm jars, seal at once.

For She Who Would a Journey Go.

Do not burden yourself with too much clothing. This sounds unusual, but like the story that never loses anything in the telling, luggage seldom loses any weight in traveling and it is foolish to burden one's self with more than is needed. Take enough undergarments and outer garments to keep fresh and trim in appearance, but is foolish beyond words to take more than you can wear. It only means additional trouble in packing and unpacking. And who wants trouble on a holiday? Do not be persuaded into buying cheap souvenirs or ridiculous mementoes for which you have no earthly use. They only take up space and are usually a nuisance. Besides, it is more sensible to save your money for articles you really desire or need. And do not rush. One is always tempted to do and see everything, but it is far wiser to take matters leisurely and calmly instead of rushing about in a breakneck and rying fashion. Remember to have some consideration for your body.

TELLS ON THE KIDNEYS.

Greencastle People Have Found This to Be True.

The strain of overwork tells on weakened kidneys. The hurry and worry of business men, the heavy lifting and stooping of workmen, the women's household cares, tend to wear, weaken and injure the kidneys until they can no longer filter the poison from the blood and the whole body suffers from the waste matter that accumulates. Weakened kidneys need quick assistance. Doan's Kidney Pills are prepared especially for weakened kidneys; tired, worn-out backs—have proven their merit in thousands of such cases. Convincing proof of their worth in a Greencastle citizen's statement:

Everet Stewart, 320 N. Indiana St., Greencastle, Ind., says: "For some time I suffered from kidney trouble. I had sharp pains through the small of my back, accompanied by dizzy spells and a tired feeling. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills removed the pain in my back and the tired feeling and dizzy spells left. The cure has been permanent."

DAIRY CREAMERY

FEEDING BREWERS' GRAINS.

Unless Properly Treated Soon Lose Its Nutritive Value.

Twenty years ago practically all dairymen wherever possible were feeding fresh malt sprouts from the breweries but of late years we do not hear much about this business although we suppose it is still going on. Average analyses show that brewers' grains contain more than twenty per cent. albumin, from forty to fifty per cent. carbohydrates and more than six per cent. fat which would show that this food is way up in all the elements that go into the making of milk. When fresh more than seventy-five per cent. of water is present. If allowed to remain in this condition lactic acid fermentation sets in, which later is supplanted by butyric acid fermentation. Finally, after a certain amount of butyric acid has accumulated, putrefaction begins which by the production of ammonia neutralizes the lactic and butyric acids and imparts an alkaline reaction to the mass of grains. The odor is then offensive and the food value diminishes as the proteid contents are decomposed by the putrefactive bacteria. In this condition, if not positively injurious, brewers' grains are at least of little food value. For this reason all such stuff should be thoroughly dried when it comes from the vat and in this condition it will last a long while.—Field and Farm.

Milking Machines in Use.

It is said that there are now about one thousand milking machines in use in the United States, among large dairy herds. At the Nebraska Station, at Lincoln, one is in use to test an extensive way the effect of the machine on the monthly and yearly records of the cows, as well as the cost of operating, etc. This experiment has now been in operation some time, and though considerable data has been obtained, it is difficult to tell just how it will influence the yearly production of the animals. No difficulty has been experienced in milking any and all cows tried or have any of the animals been forced dry by the treatment. Some cows we have wished to dry have been put on the machine, but we have found it necessary to skip milkings in order to reduce their flow. In one case a kicking cow was brought into the herd and the machine proved to be the best milker in this case, as hand milking was extremely difficult.

Where One Cow Is Kept.

Families that keep only one cow should endeavor to have the best animal that can be procured. More labor is required to care for a single cow, proportionately, than for a herd. A cow for the family should give a large flow of milk for at least 10 months of the year, and the milk should contain not less than 4 per cent. of butter fat, as cream is one of the essentials. It is better to have a cow that gives even richer milk, but the majority of family cows are selected without regard to merits in that respect. It is difficult to rear the calves in such cases, hence in purchasing the family cow it will be profitable to pay a high price for a superior animal.

Favors Covered Pails.

The advantages of using covered pails with small openings are apparent from the fact that one of the most prolific causes of contamination is from the cow and stable at the time of milking. When these small pails were first introduced into the stables the men claimed that they could not milk into them, but when one of them was reminded that one of his diversions was milking into the mouth of a cat sitting upon her hand legs his objection was readily overcome.—F. E. Dawley.

Drinking Separator Milk.

We have often heard it said that separator milk, even with a good amount of butter fat left in it, is not fit to drink. Some people imagine that the separator does something to it. It depends upon what is done to the separator. If it has been cleaned properly and well after using it each morning and evening nothing is left to give taste to the milk. It has been proven on the other hand that milk run through a clean separator is clarified and aerated.

Burnt Corn for Poultry.

Corn burnt on the cob and the refuse—which consist almost entirely of the grains reduced to charcoal and still retaining their perfect shape—placed before fowls, is greedily eaten by them, with a marked improvement in their health. This is shown by the brighter color of their combs, and their sooner producing a great average of eggs to the flock than ever before.

Satisfactory Sheep Dip.

As a sheep dip, the following is recommended by a breeder: Add 40 pounds of soft soap to ten gallons of boiling water, and, while boiling, add one pound of carbolic acid. This may then be thinned down with 100 gallons of cold water. This quantity is sufficient for dipping 75 sheep.

TRIED IN THE BALANCE.

Only Wanted One to Stay, but Both Left.

The par or maid entered Miss Antline's dressing room as that young lady sat before the glass putting on the last few dabs of powder.

"Oh! Miss Antline," she said, "both them young gents your engaged to is in the drawing room, and they seem to have found out as you've been false to both, and it looks as if there's going to be a row."

"Goodness me, Matilda," exclaimed the startled fair one, "what ever shall I do?"

Matilda thought for a moment and then answered: "I know, miss. I'll go and tell them you're crying your eyes out because your father's lost all his money, and you can keep the one who stays."

Matilda departed, and in a short time returned with a blank look on her face.

"Well," inquired the young lady, "which?"

"Please, miss," returned the maid, "they're both gone!"—Sketchy Bits.

A Reinvestment.

A Misouri man tells of an Irishman named Coughlin, who lived in a shanty standing in a field near the main highway from Kansas City. The foundations of the shanty were lower than the road through which ran a big water main. As the living floor of the place was raised on posts to make it level with the highway, it left a large cellar underneath, where Coughlin kept a dozen hens.

One day the water burst, flooding the cellar and drowning the hens. Whereupon Coughlin took steps to enter a claim for damages against the city. After much delay influential friends succeeding in securing the sum of $25 in settlement of Coughlin's claim.

"I've got the money!" shouted the Irishman to a neighbor sitting on the steps of the next shanty.

"It's glad I am to hear that," was the reply. "And how much was it, Coughlin?"

"Twenty-five dollars," said Coughlin.

"An' pwat are ye goin' to do with the twenty-five, Coughlin?"

"I'm going to buy twenty-five dollars' worth of ducks," said Coughlin.—Harper's Weekly.

A Day Off.

A certain scientist in the service of Uncle Sam at Washington is said to be a hard taskmaster to both his official and his domestic servants.

Being detailed once to accompany a scientific expedition on an extended cruise the scientist is said to have absent a little in communicating the news to his personal attendant.

"Henry," said he, "how would you like to go with me around the world?"

"Do we go from east to west, sir?" asked the man.

"Yes."

"And we lose a day going that way, do we not, sir?"

"We do."

"Then, sir, I should like very much to go. It would give me a day off."—Washington Star.

Business Is Business.

"You butchers certainly have a snap," remarked the grocer, "How do you figure that out?"

queried the man behind the meat block.

"Well," rejoined the butcher, "I don't see where I get the bulge on you. When you sell cheese don't you weigh the holes and get cheese prices for them?"

LIVE STOCK

CHOICE MUTTON AND LAMB.

Large Profits for Farmers Who Make a Specialty of the Mutton Breeds.

It has been claimed by those who have tried the experiment that sheep will eat a more extensive variety of plants than any other domestic animal. Hence the great value of sheep on a farm where weeds and bushes abound. The weeds will be eaten generally as readily as the grasses. This taste for a variety extends to dried weeds found in hay or straw, which makes sheep practically omnivorous of vegetable matter, and this propensity also makes the sheep a useful animal in utilizing otherwise waste products of the farm. While there are many farmers who believe that the fine wool sheep are profitable, yet the majority of those interested in sheep are giving their attention to the mutton breeds, which not only produce wool, but also grow to large size, afford superior lambs for market, and enrich the land. Investigation of the sheep industry by the Department of Agriculture shows that this country does not supply itself with mutton. Sheep will give a large profit on valuable land, which is demonstrated by the fact that in England and Scotland, where rents are high, the best lands are devoted to sheep. In this country the average is about 25 sheep on 1000 acres, while in Scotland the average is 1380 sheep per 1000 acres, England sustaining 680 sheep on 1000 acres. In United States we have made wool the special object in keeping sheep, but in England and Scotland the wool is secondary, the preference being for choice mutton, and the use of mutton breeds of sheep only.

Occasionally a prime carcass is sold at a high price on the stalls of some leading American market, and yet the same quality of mutton is found in every market in Great Britain; in fact, the mutton sold here, coming as it does largely from cross-breeds and common sheep, would be almost unsalable in Europe, for the reason that we have allowed the opportunity of securing large profits to pass by in the vain effort to make wool alone pay instead of wool and choice mutton. Farmers in the United States are becoming aware of the mistakes of the past, and the best specimens of mutton breeds of sheep have been selected in England and imported into this country, with the result that the value of the sheep in the United States is greater than ever before. Many experiments have been made in feeding the mutton breeds. In order to give the farmers full information regarding their use, the Government having issued bulletins which will no doubt greatly assist in fostering the breeding of mutton sheep. It is not to be overlooked that farmers should abandon the belief that sheep are self-supporting, as the keeping of sheep on hill-sides, and with liberty to roam at will, producing wool but inferior carcasses, is not profitable, compared with providing the sheep with shelter, good pasturage, grain and special care when the lambs come in. It is possible that more expense must be incurred with the mutton breeds than with the fine-wool sheep, but the profits will be larger, and less land will be required for obtaining the same profit than can be derived from inferior sheep.

Sow and Pig Brooder House.

J. P. Gognot, Lawrence Co., Ill., a very successful hog breeder, has devised what he calls a handy sow and pig brooder house. It is used for a sow with pigs only, but may also be used for pigs after weaning or even mature hogs.

It is also a handy small house for other purposes about the farm and may be used for temporary storage of fruits and vegetables. Being on runners and without a floor, it may be hauled to the field and placed over potatoes, or other vegetables, piled in heaps on frosty nights.

This sow and pig house is practically a roof on runners. It is 6x8 feet, inside measurements. The runners are 2x8 inch boards. Four rafters are made of 2x4 inch stuff and four matched 1x3 boards. The roofing is made of Georgia pine ship lap, and the gables are pine siding. The house is 5 feet high at the ridge, and the cost of material at this point is $5.99, not counting paint.

Such a house kept well painted should last ten to twenty years, and pay for itself many times over.

JUST WHAT HE WANTED

Got Job That He Could Laugh at Others Misfortune.

It isn't everybody that gets a place in life that's just suited to him," said Mr. Hobart thoughtfully, "but I declare it seems as if Jed Loring landed in the very spot he'd choose above every other."

"I didn't suppose anything would ever suit Jed," remarked Mrs. Hobart, "a man that always thought everybody was better off than he, and never appeared to enjoy anything except other folk's misfortunes. Where in the world is he?"

"While I was visiting Henry's folks," said Mr. Hobart, "they took me across the ferry to the island one day. I thought that the face of the man who worked the gates looked kind of familiar, and he gazed at me real searching as Henry and I stood there."

"Aren't you Jim Hobart that used to live in Bushby?" he asked me at last.

"I am, and still do," says I, "and it's just come to me who you are. You're Jed Loring."

"He nodded that I was right."

"Got a job that suits you here, I guess," I said, for he's grown stouter and looks considerable cheerfuller than he used to when he was here in Bushby."

"Yes, I have," says he real hearty. "Why, this ferryboat runs back and forth every half-hour all day long, and there's hardly a trip but what somebody misses it, and gets as mad as fury!"—Youth's Companion.

A French "Bull."

"They thought, more of the Legion of Honor in the time of the first Napoleon than they do now," said a well-known Frenchman. "The emperor one day met an old one armed veteran."

"How did you lose your arm?" he asked.

"Sire, at Ansterlitz."

"And were you decorated?"

"No, sire."

"Then here is my own cross for you; I make you chevalier!"

"Your majesty makes me chevalier because I have lost one arm! What would your majesty have done had I lost both arms?"

"Oh, in that case I should have made you officer of the Legion!"

"Whereupon the old soldier immediately drew his sword and cut off the other arm!"

There is no particular reason to doubt this story. The only question is, how did he do it?—Modern Society.

Nailing Him Down.

Smith, a master bricklayer, is the meanest man on earth. For the most trivial offenses he makes deductions from his workmen's wages.

Only the other day a bricklayer who was repairing a church tower slipped and fell off the high scaffolding. Luckily for him, however, a friendly nail caught in his clothing and held him safely until he was rescued by his comrades.

It so chanced that Smith was passing at the time. When on pay day the said bricklayer received his wages it was accompanied by the following note:

"Time stopped fifteen minutes for hanging on a nail—20 cents."

A Financier.

A little boy told his friend, another youngster, that his mother was accustomed to give him a penny every morning so that he should take his medicine in peace and quietness.

"Well, what do you do with it?" queried the little friend.

"Mother puts the money in a box until there is a shilling."

"And what then?"

"Why, then mother buys another bottle of medicine with it!"—London Tatler.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Hamly Rowler—"Had you heard that West with an Uncle Tom's company, narrowly escaped getting killed in one of those railroad tunnels?"

De Eggover—"Horrible! How?"

Hamly Rowler—"A fast express knocked him off a trestle and broke his neck just before he reached the tunnel."

Homeward Bound.

"I dunno as we have done humanity any good," by rescuin' that shipwrecked gang," said the captain of the relief brig gloomily.

"Why do you say that cap'n?" inquired the mate.

"Six on 'em have started sea novels."—Washington Herald.

CONTROL OF PLANT DISEASES.

Requires Constant Vigilance and Steady Work.

The attempt to bring about the control of plant diseases by attention to cultural methods has great possibilities. No detailed instructions can here be offered, only a few suggestions arising from a study of the diseases and their causes, can be given upon which the cultivator with his complete knowledge of the plants themselves may make plans for putting them into practice.

Whatever is done to keep crops in healthy condition is a virtual fighting of disease and this is largely accomplished by methods of culture.

Rotation of crops can often be employed advantageously. The wilt of melons and the rot of cabbage are examples of diseases that may be carried over in the soil. A rotation gives opportunity for the starving out of the germs and lessens the chances of the disease becoming prevalent again.

Drainage is a prominent factor in the general health of field crops. It also is very liable to have an influence on the amount of rust in the cereal crops, the well-drained fields usually suffering less injury, owing to the firmer and less succulent tissues than are produced where there is too much water in the soil.

The matter of early ripening is also worthy of much attention in regard to the grain rusts. Repeated observations go to show that a suitable fertilizer, or any other factor which has a tendency to produce early ripening, is an advantage in decreasing the amount of damage from rust.

Peaches Affected With Yellows.

The accompanying illustration and description may be of assistance to farmers in determining this disease.

"The fruit ripens several days or weeks before healthy fruit of the same variety. The prematurely ripened fruit is red spotted and has red streaks through the flesh and the fruit is worthless. Later the leaf buds develop into slender twigs which have small, narrow, pointed, yellowish leaves and the tree soon dies.

FREE EFFECTED WITH YELLOWS

The disease may show on part of the tree only, though the whole tree be diseased. Examine all the trees carefully during the ripening period and afterward and pull up and burn every affected tree as soon as discovered no matter how slightly diseased. This will keep the disease down so that only a few cases appear each year, when if they are allowed to stand the disease spreads rapidly to the surrounding trees."

Planting for Good Rhubarb.

To have good rhubarb, one should provide a place not less than five feet in diameter for each plant. The soil should be as mellow and rich as thorough spading and manure can make it to the depth of at least eighteen inches and thirty would be better. Set the roots and protect them from weeds until the plants gain size and strength enough to protect themselves. Break out any flowering stems that may appear as soon as they can be seen and do not be tempted into using any of the leaves the first year. The next year an abundance of leaves should come on. These should be snapped off by a sharp pull outward and downwards, so as to separate them at the base without disturbing the bud.

To Destroy Grubs.

A good method for destroying grubs in land is to plow it as for potatoes and plant to artichokes. When the tubers are ready for the hogs, turn them in and allow them to root up the field. They eat the artichokes and grubs, the one balancing the other. After they have turned the surface layer nearly over, plow the ground and allow them to root again. By following this method for two years in succession, nearly all the grubs will be destroyed.

Don't allow the clover to become too ripe before cutting. It costs more to keep vermin-stricken sheep than clean, healthy sheep. Now is a splendid time to select and fatten the unthrifty stock.

DePauw university is heartily co-operating with the city in the attempt to obtain the state penal farm for Putnam county. The board of trustees have agreed to assist in obtaining the institution and influential alumni over the state are being communicated with and being asked to assist. DePauw will be a big factor when it comes to assisting in landing the institution for Greencastle.

The opportunity for Greencastle and Putnam county to obtain the state penal farm is brilliant, according to the belief of E. M. Denn, who has taken charge of the situation. He received a letter from the secretary of the commission Monday which was very encouraging. He immediately wrote to the secretary and showed further reasons why a situation near this city would be beneficial. A tract of land comprising about 700 acres has been investigated and options taken.

Marshal Johns received a telephone call from Lebanon Tuesday morning asking him to be on the lookout for Robert Farmer, age nine years, who left that town about a month ago in company with a blind broom seller. The lad's mother asked that should the pair come to this city the boy be apprehended and sent home. The boy's mother received a letter from him some time ago saying he was in Crawfordsville and that he would be in Greencastle. The mother allowed the boy to accompany the blind man but since the lad's absence has caused her to want him back.

and went on the lecture platform the old observation tower was neglected until Guy West Wilson, '02, entered DePauw. Mr. Wilson was a born scientist and during two or three years of his college course he made use of the old tower for the purpose of determining the frequency and direction of the air currents in this county. He carried on a number of experiments, and his observations were all carefully recorded. He, too, in time, began making reports for the United States government, and the reports he made became famous for their accuracy. Mr. Wilson has since become a very prominent and able scientist, and at the present time is in the employ of the United States government.

But since Mr. Wilson's day the old tower has been neglected. For the last two years it has been considered unsafe, and no one has been permitted to use it. When the men were put to work repairing the roof of the old building it was decided that it should be destroyed. And so it, too, like the other old land marks that served to recall the work and escapades of another day to the old grads will be gone when next they come back for their class reunions.

RILEY'S POEMS ARE MADE REAL

J. R. Barkley, Crayon Artist, is Apt Illustrator.

ALSO EXPERT CLAY MODELER

Has Often Caused Merriment by Sketching the Face of Some Unsuspecting Party in the Audience.

There will be at least one entertainment at the coming Chautauqua which even a deaf and dumb man can enjoy, and that will be the hour allotted to James R. Barkley, the crayon artist and clay modeler. There is something about pictures that fascinates the ordinary man or woman, especially when the evolution of the picture can be watched from the first stroke of the crayon, clear through to the completion. All of Mr. Barkley's work is done right before the eyes of the audience, and his quaint and humorous remarks while the work is progressing, help to keep the audience in a happy frame of mind. Sometimes a picture calls for a song, and as some favorite melody is being sung, the artist rapidly illustrates the lines.

Perhaps the most popular phase of Mr. Barkley's work, is the illustrating of the heart touching verses of James Whitcomb Riley. Taking his crayon in hand he will begin to recite "When the Frost is in the Pumpkin, and the Fodder is in the Shock" at the same time reproducing a country house with the field of shocked corn and pumpkins, true to the words of the poem in every detail. Following this may be a picture that will cause the audience to roar with laughter, and then a picture that will leave scarcely a dry eye. For many years, Mr. Barkley has been entertaining thousands in nearly every state.

JAMES R. BARKLEY.

and he has come close to the hearts of the common people. He knows their needs, their lives, and his programs leave a lasting impression for good.

The clay modeling is a feature of the program that causes many to wonder at the realistic appearance of the faces and figures sculptured in the clay.

CIRCUIT CHAUTAUQUAS

About three times as many circuit Chautauquas will be held in 1915 as were held in 1912. The number of independent or "old line" Chautauquas grows less each year, and will soon be found only in ancient history. The wonderful growth of the "Circuit" plan demonstrates the superiority of modern business methods, along with community co-operation.

The highest type of business organization is to be found in the management of these "systems" or corporations, coupled with years of experience, as over against the slipshod methods, and often muleish stupidity of individual members of the committees, appointed promiscuously or by chance finding a place in the management of the Independent Chautauqua. The Independent, from the conditions surrounding its birth was "born to die," while the circuits are laying down foundations which seem to insure, if not a perpetual youth, at least a ripe old age.

RIGHT CHAUTAUQUA IDEA

The "Lincoln" Chautauquas are distinctive among "Circuit" assemblies. They have a purpose and that purpose is kept in the line-light. They are co-operative and profit-sharing. The $20,000 authorized capital stock is owned and controlled by the local Chautauqua assemblies, and the board of directors are elected from and represent the Chautauqua towns themselves. Can you imagine a more practical or common-sense arrangement for carrying out the Chautauqua idea?
